

ABSTRACT

A tool safety system minimizes the likelihood of injury by detecting when a body part is in close proximity to a moving part of the tool. Upon detecting, a control system can provide one or more of moving the tool, disabling the moving part, or 5 producing a warning signal.